

My role as one of the two designers involved making the website sitemap and designing mock-ups, where decisions on typography and colour schemes played a crucial role in ensuring a cohesive design. . I took charge of developing the contact page and further contributed by making the back-to-top button and hamburger navigation features, and also creating a consistent footer across all pages.

Throughout the project, I believe our group demonstrated effective teamwork despite the logistical challenges we faced. Weekly Zoom meetings during holidays proved instrumental in, allowing us to discuss progress and plan effectively. Successes included collaborative efforts, achieving design consistency, and successful implementation of key features. However, challenges arose in reaching consensus on certain design aspects, causing occasional delays.

Lessons learned from this experience include recognizing the importance of improved communication and active participation in decision-making processes. Despite these challenges, the successful completion of the project and positive aspects of our teamwork highlight the potential for continued growth and improvement in future collaborations.
